

In spite of the global financial situation, Sierra Holdings Group has just completed its' most successful year yet. We owe it to the hard work of our research department who continued to identify those financial instruments that still rose in value. Also, kudos to our financial advisors who were hard at work steering their clients into these portfolio assets.