

26 June

Google is set to face a record antitrust fine from the European Union on Tuesday for promoting its own shopping search service over those of smaller rivals, according to two people familiar with the probe that has dramatically sped up in recent days.

Bitcoin declined as much as 17 percent, while smaller competitor ether continued to slide after experiencing a "flash crash" last week, raising concern about mainstream acceptance of the digital currencies.

The Republican chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he'll block U.S. arms sales to Saudi Arabia, Qatar and their neighbors in the Gulf Cooperation Council to prod them toward ending a standoff among critical American allies in the region.

U.S. President Donald Trump warned Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi his country must do more to reduce obstacles to U.S. exports even as he offered thanks for recent purchases of American-made equipment.

27 June

U.K. Prime Minister Theresa May will face the first key test of her new minority government's power as Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn challenges Tory lawmakers on austerity.

Deutsche Bank AG, the German lender seeking to overhaul how it manages risks, made a bet on U.S. inflation that puts the firm on course to lose as much as $60 million, people familiar with the matter said.

The Dutch state will sell an additional 7 percent of ABN Amro Group NV, a stake worth about 1.5 billion euros ($1.7 billion) at current prices, taking advantage of steady demand for European bank stocks as it progresses toward full privatization.

Australia's central bank could increase interest rates eight times in the next two years, former board member John Edwards said.

28 June

The U.K. must speedily conclude an agreement to protect European Union nationals working in the country, according to the Recruitment and Employment Confederation.

The Trump administration will put its new travel restrictions on refugees and migrants from six countries into effect at 8 p.m. eastern time on Thursday, according to a person familiar with the matter.

FedEx Corp. said the worldwide operations and communications systems of its TNT Express unit in Europe have been "significantly" affected by a cyberattack, causing delays in deliveries.

Malaysian assets are back in favor as investors focus on encouraging signs of an economic turnaround instead of a scandal that has touched the top of government and as far as Hollywood.

29 June

The U.K. must comply with hundreds of European Union regulations and European Court of Justice rulings even after its withdrawal from the bloc or face penalties, according to a series of negotiating documents under discussion by the EU's 27 remaining member states.

President Donald Trump and Russian President Vladimir Putin will hold their first meeting as heads of state during the Group of 20 summit next week in Hamburg.

Persian Gulf carriers Emirates and Etihad Airways PJSC said they're hopeful that tighter airport security requirements announced by the Trump administration will pave the way for the lifting of a ban on the use of laptops on flights from Mideast hubs to the U.S.

Speculators looking to profit from the hawkish shift among global central banks have a fresh target: the Australian dollar.

30 June

Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Hammond will press British companies to try harder to seize opportunities from Brexit, promising in return that the government will heed their concerns over the split with the U.K.'s biggest trading partner.

The interior ministers of France, Germany and Italy, as well as the European Union commissioner in charge of migration, will meet for dinner in Paris on Sunday after Italy said it could no longer cope alone with arrivals from across the Mediterranean.

President Donald Trump ratcheted up his feud with the media on Sunday when he posted a video on Twitter depicting himself body-slammng and choking a person whose head had been digitally replaced by the logo of news network CNN.

Singapore home prices fell in the quarter ended June, extending the drop in property values to a record 15th quarter as most measures to cool the market remain in place despite a slight easing in March.

